THE IRIS

(From the Greek Iridacea—Rainbow)

The Iris is always found in gardens of the cultured and refined. It can be planted in generous masses along walks, drives, in shrubberies, borders, streams, pools and in rock gardens. It will grow where other plants can not thrive. Needing only shallow planting and light cultivating, it requires less care, while at the same time giving more beauty than any other hardy garden plant. It is a most satisfactory decorative garden plant and splendid as a cut flower.

It's magic beauty, further enhanced by the many hundreds of newer creations, makes it without doubt a flower that excels all others in point of artistic colorings.
